

Royce Simmons with Charlie Ranse, 10, at the announcement.
Pictures: Angelo Velardo

A new Adventure for Prowl program

Joel Erickson

A NEW partnership between Panthers on the Prowl and Charity TV Global is expected to directly benefit the Penrith community.

Panthers Group CEO Brian Fletcher, Penrith Mayor Ross Fowler and Panthers legend Royce Simmons were among those on hand to announce the partnership with Charity TV Global's Adventure All Stars program. It is billed as "Australia's only socially conscious television series" and broadcasts on 7TWO.

"We are pleased to announce this partnership with the Panthers on the Prowl Community Development Foundation," Charity TV Global founder Troy Gray said.

Mayor Ross Fowler, Brian Fletcher, Charity TV Global's Troy Gray and Royce Simmons.

"Together we are committed to positively impacting the greater Penrith region through our groundbreaking television series which will not only give exposure to the foundation but also raise money to contribute and continue the great work the foundation is doing in the community."

Panthers on the Prowl plans to use the funds to employ the services of additional teaching resources to further develop its local school programs and community initiatives.

Charlie Ranse from Emu Plains Public School is one of the students who benefits from the primary school program.

Adventure All Stars provides the opportunity for anyone to undertake a fundraising journey for their nominated charity. Their reward is a "life-changing" journey to a secret location for six days of fun and adventure, which is filmed by Charity TV Global.

"We hope to see lots of Penrith locals putting up their hand to star in our next Adventure All Stars series and doing their bit to help the Penrith community," Mr Gray said.